

Bruno R. Gerard

Bruno R. Gerard
Director,
Currency Strategies

Ph.D., The Anderson School, University of California at Los Angeles
19 years of finance and investment experience

- Responsible for Mellon Capital's active currency product development and strategy
- Prior to joining Mellon Capital, was a professor of finance at the Norwegian School of Business in Oslo and Tilburg University in the Netherlands. Previously, on faculty of the Marshall School of Business at USC, the Anderson School at UCLA and the University of Michigan business school
- Extensive teaching and research experience in empirical asset pricing, international asset pricing, financial econometrics, asset allocation, currency markets and risk management
- Noted author of numerous finance and investment journal articles, including publications in the Journal of Finance, Journal of Financial Economics, and the Journal of Business
- Frequent speaker at investment seminars sponsored by a variety of academic and professional organisations